Dear Ms. Denning,

I am writing in response to a message received through our office's website on October 11, 2025. In that message, you appear to ask for a wide range of information, including all records, communications, directives, and guidance created or received by our office related to Executive Order 14248.

The Secretary of State's office appreciates your interest in Ohio's elections operations. However, to the extent that this communication could be construed as a public records request, I am writing to let you know that the request is denied. A public records request must identify, with reasonable clarity, existing records; a request is improper if it is a request to search for information wherever it may exist across an office's records. See State ex rel. Copley Ohio Newspapers, Inc., 2024-Ohio-5677, at ¶ 13. The Ohio Supreme Court has also made clear that requests for "any and all records" are overly broad. See State ex rel. Dillery v. Icsman, 92 Ohio St.3d 312, 314, 750 N.E.2d 156 (2001); State ex rel. Morgan v. Strickland, 121 Ohio St. 3d 600, 603 (2009) (request for "[a]ny and all e-mail communications" which reference a topic was overly broad).

If you would like to clarify or refine your request by identifying specific records that you seek, please let us know. Thank you again for your interest in Ohio's elections operations.
